iBag2 FAQs

Who did finder.com collaborate with on the design and build of the iBag2?

finder.com assembled a team of experts to help develop the iBag2 to ensure the highest quality technology and design. A female-led team of engineers from robotics firm Colmac Robotics in Dublin, Ireland, designed the robotics that brings finder.com's concept to life, while renowned New York-based fashion designer Geova Rodriguez designed the bag's exterior.

How does the iBag2 differ from the original iBag?

finder.com created the iBag2 following the successful launch of the original iBag in Australia in 2014. The handbags have the same objective – to help curb impulsive spending – while improvements have been made to the design and technology for the iBag2. For example, the original iBag does not feature the iBag2's self-lock mechanism when entering a shopping danger zone. Instead, the original only locks at specific vulnerable spending times. Other upgrades include a more powerful microprocessor, electromagnets, couture design, bluetooth technology and sunscreen application reminder.

When does the iBag2 go into production?

If we receive enough interest from the public, we will go into production. There is a form on www.finder.com/ibag where people can register their interest.

Will you be releasing a bag for men?

finder.com is in the research and design stage for a men's version of the iBag2, with a prototype due to be released in December 2016.
